Making master

Master Sgt. Stephen Skaroski, 512th Maintenance Squadron, is one of 29 senior NCOs who walked through a sword cordon before being inducted into the senior NCO corps March 6 at the Landings. The Airmen were promoted to master sergeant over the past year. The wing's Top 3 hosted the annual senior NCO induction ceremony.

Strong triad key to unit success

Maj. Brian Zeman

71st Aerial Port Squadron commander

I recently had the opportunity to attend the Triad course in Atlanta, Ga. This interactive course was designed to foster the working relationship between three key leadership positions in a typical U.S. Air Force Reserve squadron: the commander, the senior Air Reserve Technician and the first sergeant.

"All of our Airmen within a squadron are invaluable to the success of the unit; however, the triad is especially important ..."

AF Assistance Fund drive underway

Dover's Annual Air Force Assistance Fund drive began March 8 and runs through April 16.

The 512th Airlift Wing's project officers for the 2010 campaign are 2nd Lt. Michelle Anderson, 512th Maintenance Squadron, and Capt. John Rundle, 512th Aerospace Medicine Squadron. Group and squadron representatives will be assigned and disseminated before the April unit training assembly. These keyworkers will have preprinted donation forms available for anyone wishing to make a donation.

The Air Force Assistance Fund is comprised of four Air Force charities: The Air Force Village Foundation, The Air Force Aid Society, The General and Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay Foundation and the Air Force Enlisted Village. These organizations provide many benefits to the Air Force community including emergency aid, financial help for educational needs, and community enhancement programs.

Last year, the Air Force Assistance Fund provided $21.6M in direct assistance to more than 42,000 Air Force members and their families. This year, Team Dover's goal is to raise $58,005 for these charities.
