The U.N. Security Council voted unanimously Oct. 12 to extend authorization of the International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan for another year while continuing to transfer key responsibilities to the Afghan government by the end of 2014.

The resolution extends the mandate for ISAF's 130,000-member force to Oct. 13, 2012. The Security Council urged U.N. members to continue contributing personnel, equipment and other resources to ISAF while working to support security and stability in Afghanistan. For most Liberty Wing members, the October unit training assembly was the last opportunity to wear the battle dress uniform before its phase-out date Nov. 1. Many reservists donned the woodland patterned uniform one last time including members from the 512th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron and 512th Maintenance Squadron who shared their thoughts about the BDUs and ABUs.

Lt. Col. Thomas Kerr, 512th MXS

"I'll miss the look, feel and nostalgia of the BDUs, but I like the no starch or ironing requirement of the ABUs."

Tech. Sgt. Derrick Barnes, 512th AMXS

"I still wear the BDUs, because I'm retiring and not getting ABUs; but, I do like how the ABUs have more pockets."

Master Sgt. Andy Bissinger, 512th MXS

"It took a little while to get used to the ABUs; they do show more dirt than the BDUs."

Senior Master Sgt. Yuk-See Ng, 512th AMXS

"I'll miss the fit of the BDUs, but I like the no ironing requirement of the ABUs though."

Staff Sgt. Jamie Elkins, 512th MXS

"The BDUs are lighter and more comfortable in summer, but the ABUs are better with their wash and wear aspect."
