

Liberty Press Weekly

Oct. 12, 2010, Vol. 2, No. 39

512th Airlift Wing, Dover Air Force Base, Del.

U.S. Air Force photo by Capt. Marnee A.C. Losurdo/Released

The big picture

Dr. Ifkhar Hussain Warraich, chief pathologist, Data Darbara Hospital in Lahore, Pakistan, uses binoculars to view the arrival of a C-5 Galaxy from the air traffic control tower at Dover Air Force Base, Del., Oct. 7, 2010. The doctor was one of seven members with the Lahore Mozang Rotary Club in Lahore, Pakistan, who toured the base and learned about the 512th and 436th Airlift Wings' missions. The group's nine-day visit to the United States is part of an international exchange program with the Wilmington, Del., Rotary Club. Read the full story at <http://www.512aw.afrc.af.mil/news/story.asp?id=123225592>.

U.S. AIR FORCE

'Aim High ... Fly-Fight-Win' to be Air Force motto

Incorporating extensive inputs from all ranks and career fields in the development effort, Airmen have selected "Aim High ... Fly-Fight-Win" as the service's motto.

An enduring statement of Airmen's pride in their service, the motto is a two-part expression -- a call to action, with a response of commitment.

"The call and the response are two sides of the same coin," said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Norton Schwartz. "Airmen indicated 'Aim High' and the response 'Fly-Fight-Win' as indicative of their enduring commitment to do just that in defense of our nation."

When the Air Force motto team embarked on the project, they committed to Airmen buy-in in an inclusive, well-researched effort, rooted in Air Force culture and identity.

"Airmen recognize a motto should represent something enduring," General Schwartz said. "It must be bigger than any single person, something that gives voice to the pride of service of all who've worn this nation's Air Force uniform -- past, present and future."

The chief master sergeant of the Air Force, the director of Air Force Public Affairs, the Air Force director of force management policy, and the commander of Air Force Recruiting Service provided the leadership oversight for the motto team research experts.

Read the full story at <http://www.512aw.afrc.af.mil/news/story.asp?id=123225884>.

Don't forget to sign-in for customer service help

Customers for the 512th Military Personnel Flight's Customer Service Section must sign in on the sign-in sheet marked 512th Customer Service located in the 436th Forces Support Squadron customer waiting area. Do not sign-in on the computer. Failure to use the 512th Customer Service sign-in sheet could cause delay in service.

As a reminder, Customer Service hours are weekdays from 8 to 11 a.m. for walk-ins and from 1 to 4 p.m. for appointments. During unit training assemblies, walk-in hours are 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays and 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Sundays. Appointments are necessary between 1 and 4 p.m.

Wing CC Calls announced

The next 512th Airlift Wing Commander's Calls are Dec. 4. Members of the 512th Operations and Maintenance Groups are scheduled to attend the 7:15 a.m. commander's call, and the 512th Mission Support Group, 512th Aerospace Medicine Squadron and 512th AW staff agencies are scheduled to attend the 3 p.m. event.

Liberty Wing members win big in golf tournament

More than 50 community and military members participated in the 2010 Bluesuiters' Golf Tournament Oct. 6 at the Eagle Creek Golf Course. A couple of 512th Airlift Wing reservists walked away winners; they are Chief Master Sgt. Fred Eason, 512th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, and Master Sgt. Danny Gilseth, 512th Logistics Readiness Flight. Awarded prizes include trophies, gift cards to local businesses, Air Force clothing and MP3 players. The Central Delaware Chamber of Commerce hosts the next Bluesuiters' Golf Tournament in the spring.